

RECOVERY CARE COORDINATOR (RCC)

FACT SHEET

What is a Recovery Care Coordinator (RCC)?

A Recovery Care Coordinator (RCC) is a member of the Army Reserve-Warrior and Family Assistance Center. This team advocates and supports Recovering Service Members (RSMs), Army Reserve Wounded, Ill, and Injured Warriors and their Family members or designated representatives by ensuring non-medical needs are met through all the phases of the Continuum of Care.

Which population does this program serve?

The populations served by the RCC's are Wounded, Ill and Injured Warriors and their Families: Troop Program Unit (TPU), Active Guard Reserve (AGR), Individual Mobilization Augmentee (IMA), Individual Ready Reserve (IRR), Retirees and Veterans.

How can this program assist Recovering Service Members, Wounded Warriors and their Families?

The RCC advocates for the RSM, Wounded Warriors and their Families to provide support and advice during the entire Continuum of Care, which includes: Recovery, Rehabilitation and Reintegration phases. The program also provides assistance in navigating Federal and State systems and helps connect Wounded Warriors and Families with the necessary financial, educational, employment, legal and medical resources. Recovery Care Coordinators can provide links to valuable federal programs, including healthcare, retirement and disability compensation, transition assistance, VA adaptive housing and vehicle assistance, VA education and training, VA vocational rehabilitation and employment, and certain Department of Labor programs.
